Like most Sites, however, the Site automatically collects certain non-personally identifiable information during a user's visit.

- More specifically:
 - I. IP Address - Each time a user visits the Site, we may automatically collect an internet protocol (IP) address and the web page from which the user was directed to the Site. In order to administer and optimize the Site and to diagnose and resolve potential issues or security threats to the Site or to the Company, we may use an IP address to help identify users and to gather broad demographic information about them.
 - II. Cookies, Pixel Tags, And Web Beacons - Cookies are small files that a site or its service provider transfers to a user's device through the web browser (if you allow) that enables the site's or service provider's systems to recognize the browser and capture and remember certain information. We use cookies to optimize Site functionality and improve a user's experience while navigating through the Site. Most or all browsers permit you to disable or reject cookies. You can do this by adjusting your preferences in the browser.

The Site may incorporate "pixel tags," "web beacons," or similar tracking technologies (collectively, "pixel tags") that track the actions of Site users. Pixel tags are used to collect information, such as the internet service provider, IP address, the type of browser software and operating system being used, the date and time the Site is accessed, the Site address, if any, from which a user linked directly to the Site and/or the Site address, if any, to which the user travels from the Site and other similar traffic-related information.

BILL GOSLING

OUTSOURCING

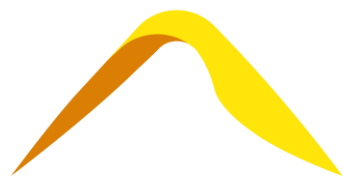

We may aggregate information collected from Site visits by various users to help us improve the Site and the services that we provide through the Site.

- III. Do Not Track - The Site tracks when visitors enter through a landing page. The Site also keeps a record of third-party Sites accessed when a user is on the Site and clicks on a hyperlink. But we do not track users to subsequent sites and do not serve targeted advertising to them.
- IV. Analytics Information - Web servers for the Site may gather anonymous navigational information about where visitors go on the Site and information about the technical efficiencies of the Site and services. Anonymous information does not directly or indirectly identify, and cannot reasonably be used to identify, a particular individual. Examples of anonymous information may include certain information about the internet browser, domain type, service provider and IP address information collected through tracking technologies and aggregated or de-identified data. We use anonymous analytics information to operate, maintain, and provide to you the features and functionality of the Site, improve our services, analyze trends and administer our web applications.
